"Not found" error when trashing project

Target version: 2021-05-26 sprint
Description It displays a spurious "not found" error when trashing a project. It appears to happen because the project is still considered selected after it has been trashed.  Steps to reproduce:  1. Create a subproject 2. Click on the subproject so it is displayed in the main panel 3. Right-click on the subproject on the left tree view and select "move to trash" 4. The project will be correctly trashed, but it will pop up a confusing dialog saying the project is not found

- Fixes "not found" error message/dialog after trashing a project.

I found an edge case:

1. Create a project
  2. Create a subproject
  3. Select the subproject
  4. Right click on the parent project and trash it
  5. You still get the "not found" error and the project tree gets confused
- Removes superfluous snackbar "About to do X..." messages when trashing groups and collections.
  - Fixes error messages when untrashing collections and projects.
  - Navigates to the recently untrashed project.
  - Updates the projects tree on the left side panel after trashing a project.
  - Adds cypress test.

Good catch! I've simplified and fixed the issue, and in the process fixed another one that slipped through: the side panel tree wasn't being updated on some occasions.
